From the beginning of history, disasters occurred in the world and they affected people's lives badly. Some people lost their families, some of them lost their houses. But I don't think people think about the causes of these disasters. They think they are natural forces but I think people cause to happen disasters. How? Here are a number of examples. Think about water pollution. How does it happen? People don't keep water clean, they throw rubbish into it and they don't use eco-friendly detergents. Human beings cut a lot of trees from the forests but they don't plant enough. So, droughts and landslides take place. I don't want to lose my hope and I want to believe people will see the importance of the nature and the environment and they will care about them a lot one day.
